

CURRICULUM

Sarah Wilson-Haffeneden and Rose Goward

Our Vision

Vision is such a powerful word. It's where we look at improvements and a pathway for the future. Where we look at where we are and where we want to be. As the grains of sand captured in this year's hourglass of time, slowly fall, we hope along with it, accomplishments and improvements are made. Not just for the benefit of those this year, but the years to come. We hope to enrich the existing opportunities, adding a little zing, while also providing some fresh opportunities to challenge, endeavour and improve. We hope to satisfy the thirst for knowledge students have and encourage students to get involved with the activities established.

Rise

At the end of the day, we can't change the curriculum and we can't really change the way it's delivered in a classroom with such little time. But what we can do, is establish the smaller activities that enrich students' experience at Mount Carmel College. So in terms of our new theme, rise, we hope people do just that and rise to the opportunities presented and rise to the challenge of self improvement and endeavour. The curriculum is a brilliant foundation where creative minds can explore and expand. Where they can learn about our world, how it works and how our society connect with it and around it.

The reason you wake up way too early in the morning, haul a heaving bag of books and spend five of your seven day week in the confines of this building. The legal requirement that forces us to come together 8:40 until 3:20 every week day. The curriculum is the thing that binds us all together through rain and sunshine. Well at least school is, and school is the thing that teaches us the contents of this curriculum. Within the leadership team, curriculum is something often overlooked, however has incredible power and necessity. We may not save the planet, your health or the rest of the world, but we save your future. Curriculum and simply education in general, is the thing that sets people up for life, fosters a love of learning and allows people to grow in a measurement beyond height. So although curriculum isn't always recognised, or deemed the most important, it has the power to make a difference. That is what we hope to restore. A passion for learning and the stability of setting up a lifestyle that calls to each person. This is our mission. To inspire, to make change, to make better. We hope in our year of leadership, we are able to make a positive difference in the reason we all come together. Let's make the reason we wake up way too early worth it. The curriculum is a powerful thing that needs to be given the credit it deserves. And when I say that, I mean the recognition of the curriculum, not the team that supports the opportunities that branch out from it.

My name is Rose and I've been at Mount Carmel since grade five. That's five years going on six of developing and growing. It's where I discovered my love of learning and have been surrounded by incredibly supportive people, making friends I plan on keeping for life.

Hi, I'm Sarah and I have been at Mount Carmel since Kindergarten. Over the past eleven years at Mount Carmel I have learnt a lot about myself and how I learn. We all learn in different ways and enjoy different subjects. Personally, my favourite subjects are English and Sports Science. I would say that I am a physical/ kinaesthetic learner. Outside of school I enjoy playing sport, especially hockey.

We look forward to the year ahead, to make positive change.
