UTS - Introduction to Bachelor of Cybersecurity and Industry Degree Academy (IDeA)

25 May

There is strong industry demand for cybersecurity professionals with sound technical capabilities, awareness of the broader context surrounding cybersecurity, and who can respond to emerging risks and opportunities in this expanding field. The Bachelor of Cybersecurity will educate and prepare graduates with specialist knowledge and skills in cybersecurity and its digital, physical and social impact. Students in the course engage in practical, hands-on learning using technologies to create and manage secure networks, systems and devices. The Industry Degree Academy (IDeA) cadetship is a new program designed to develop the next generation of tech professionals with the right mix of technical skills and industry experience. Utilising a cadetship model of study, the degree builds professional aptitude and workplace experience while studying. It is aimed at students with a passion for computer science, IT and related fields who are looking toward technically oriented industry positions.

5 ways to help your Year 10 student with study choices

Many Year 10 students are beginning to think seriously about what subjects they might pick for years 11 and 12. These are important decisions and not just because they may form the basis of further university study and career paths. They will also be the focus of the final years of schooling and could turn into the skills students carry forward into their adult lives.
