clearly kids should have credit cards, ~~because~~,
and here are my 3 reasons why:

First off, if kids get stuck anywhere they can pay for a ^{taxi} cab, ^{and} if they didn't have ^{any} money and they were alone, what would they do? They would have to sit there for hours ^{and hours} waiting for someone to pick them up, nobody would pick a random kid off the highway except for a ^{taxi} cab.

Secondly, kids can help their parents and siblings! If their parents needed groceries but they were too busy to work, you can walk over to the shops for them! It's so much fun going in the sun and do something for your family since they do so much for you! ^{and} if your siblings are craving something you can help them out, ^{and get that something}

Finally, when you're starving and your mum is out, you can always ^{go and} buy something for yourself, and you can get whatever you want! Your parents can't tell you what to do if it's your money! And if it was your parents buying you food, what if they don't know what you want?

All in all,
have credit
