Design a cultural costume that reflects your personality, interests, culture and family.

My Take On That:

I call it 'Quarantine Culture', it represents my entire family during quarantine at the moment.

Why:

The personality part is the different colours because I love the eclectic style in things.

The interests is the hoodies, I love myself a warm cuppa tea, wearing an oversized sloppy joe. And bingeing Netflix, that's where the baggy eyes come from.

The culture is basically, our way of doing things during quarantine, and the things we do, like dying hair for instance.

And this represents my entire family at the moment.

Advice For The Average 12 Year Old Australian:

My advice to all of us young Australians:

Be yourself, and don't compare yourself to anybody, and don't compare others as well, because being a kid is a lot of fun if you know how to spend your time. Never ever change yourself to be like anybody, and like people we might see on television, because you are the most important person in your life, and you need to spend time with people who like you for you, not people who tell you how to act, or dress, or speak or anything like that, because you are you, and nobody can change that.

We should only buy Australian made products:

Agree:

1. I strongly agree that Australian should only buy Australian made products, in Australia we provide everything that we need, like large farms providing us crops, so why would we need to have bought other crops from another place.
2. Buying Australian made items, it gives our Australians jobs, so they can thrive themselves and make a living for themselves. In 2016, it was shown that 62% of Australians were employed, and 36% were working part time.
3. It is known that Australia produces the best quality in our products, so all Aussies would be getting the best things money could offer, and it would boost our workers salaries and become even stronger today.

Disagree:

1. In reality, people love to claim that their country is the best and better than all, yet like Australia, we do not make everything that makes the world go round. Australia imports an abundance of essential items used in our society today, like when you are needing to go get groceries, your would drive in your car which would have been imported.
2. If all Australians began to only buy Australian made products, not only would that seem outwards, but honestly make it seem that we were to good for the other place's products, but make enemies out of other places, we would be hated in my opinion, thinking that we are to good for their products.
3. Importing products from other places would build a strong relationship, and let Australia and whomever we are importing form a strong bond, almost like an alliance.
