The Boy and the Elephant

Freya Blackwood

From an award-winning illustrator comes a tender, magical, and gorgeously rendered wordless picture book about a boy who saves the trees in the lot next door from being cut down.

Amongst the hustle and bustle of the city is an overgrown piece of land where trees and wildlife thrive. A boy, who lives in a house on the lot next to it, loves to visit. He has a friend there: an elephant, an animal that he sees within the shapes of the trees.

No matter the weather, the boy visits. And as the seasons change so does the elephant; thick green foliage changes to autumnal colors before the bare branches of harsh winter appear. But one day, builders arrive. The land has been sold, and the trees have been marked for removal. The boy can't lose his elephant, and so he comes up with a plan.

Unbearably beautiful and moving, and with a touch of magical realism, here is a wordless picture book about conservation and children's ability to be powerful agents of change.

Suddenly Winton is up on two hooves, busting hip-hop moves until the music stops and he returns to normal. Later, Winton starts line dancing to country music. The girls think Winton's dancing is wonderful, but Gus reminds them the TV commercial is expecting a calm and placid goat.

Tango music blares across the set! Winton runs away, sweeps Gus off his feet and together they high step across the set. Goat's milk soap goes flying and chaos ensues - all to the horror of Cassie and Lina! They've ruined the commercial! Their pet sitting careers are over!The music stops and Winton and Gus beam with satisfaction while Cassie and Lina try to slip away, unseen, until the director calls them back. Yarn Quest 1: The Search for the Story Realm

The Search for the Story Realm

Brooke Scobie, Jade Goodwin

A breathtaking fantasy-adventure trilogy. Do you dare step into the Realm? A magical journey awaits . . . Long ago (or maybe it was yesterday?) in the depths of the cool dark bush, under fallen trees and lime-green moss, lived an ancient magic. A magic that, despite what you might imagine, did not belong there at all. It especially didn't belong at a 10-year-old's house.

Tane was looking for adventure as he raced through the bush after school one day. What he was not looking for was a Story Spirit- yep, he met some kind of ghost-kid with a cheeky grin and swirling colours, looking like a whole universe was trapped inside them. But the Story Spirit is stuck, and urgently needs Tane and Sibyl's help . . . only finishing a story will get them back home.

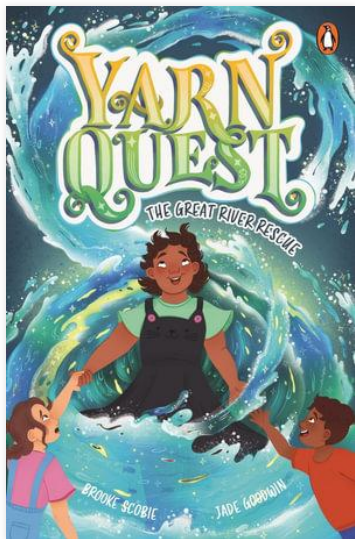

Sounds easy, right?

But spirits aren't real . . . are they?

And how can telling a story change a real-life ending? And when does a story become a lie?

The first in a magical new adventure series for kids aged eight-and-up, join Sibyl and Tane on the quest of a lifetime uncovering a powerful storytelling force along the way.

P has always had a special connection to water. Their first step as a baby was towards a river. Nearly 12, rivers are P's safe place where almost everything makes sense. But now the Great River is sick, and she desperately needs P's help.

But how can a regular kid save a whole river, let alone an entire magical Realm?

And what kind of a greedy world destroys its own environment and poisons its waters . . . oh, wait.

The third book in the debut fantasy trilogy. A magical adventure awaits! Long ago (or maybe it was just yesterday?) all of the universes were linked together. But one day, after millions of years of peace a great war broke out, and the fibres that held the woven universes together broke.

The Story Realm grew in harmony on its own for the longest time, until the day a group of beings came in search of land and power to steal. Though the Story Realm survived this invasion, the land, and the magic within were never the same.

For weeks Sibyl has been haunted by nightmares that feel magic. A mysterious illness is ripping through the Story Realm- trees are disappearing, animals are acting vicious, and now Sibyl herself is sick too.

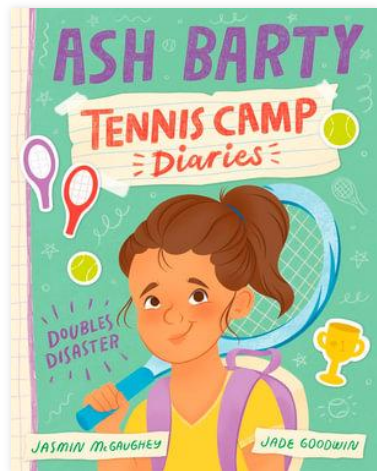

The only cure? Our adventurers, Tane, P and Sibyl, must find the heart of the Story Realm. With a new Storyteller in town, their quest might just be possible.

But who is this new Storyteller? Can they be trusted?

Come Together Again

A Celebration of First Nations Music, Song and Dance

Isaiah Firebrace, Jaelyn Biumaiwai

Come Together Again is the second delightful picture book from Isaiah Firebrace for children aged 5 and up. It explores First Nations culture through a celebration of music, song and dance. Music, song and dance brings people together, creating connections. For First Nations People, it is the heart of culture and community, holding knowledge, stories and tradition.

For Isaiah, music is a huge part of who he is and in this book he shares his passion. Come Together Again teaches young readers about the integral role music and performance have played in 60,000 years of First Nations history and culture. Learn about the yidaki (didgeridoo) and how it makes its sounds or how leaves can whistle. Be introduced to First Nations singers in pop, country and opera music.

Discover dancers in the styles of contemporary, ballet and hip-hop. Collaborating once again with Mununjali and Fijian artist Jaelyn Biumaiwai, Isaiah takes us on a musical learning journey through ceremonial history, instrument creation, and cultural beliefs and practices.
