We strive to provide a nurturing, active, vibrant, and challenging environment that embraces the importance of caring for and catering for the whole child, and preparing them for the 21st century in every way possible. Each student's strengths, interests and stage of development are identified and catered for and a wide variety of experiences and learning offered to empower students to reach their personal best, both academically and socially.

In addition to bright and colourful classrooms, students access the art room, music room, library and gym, as well as our Kitchen and edible garden. The school is located on a large parcel of land with a variety of play spaces, which allows students many opportunities to be physically active and engaged. At Surfside Primary School our positive school culture is predicated on student engagement being the basis for learning. The foundation of our positive school culture is the active participation of all members of the school community so they feel valued, safe and secure; are provided with meaningful opportunities to contribute to the school; and have every opportunity to meet their personal and educational potential.

Student voice is encouraged through participation in the student voice groups, a range of year 5 and 6 leadership positions, and the formulation of classroom protocols. Educational decision making processes take student views into consideration. The school continues to build on opportunities to consult with our students, gather feedback and encourage our students to take on age appropriate, meaningful responsibilities both within the school and the broader community.

Under the umbrella of School Wide Positive Behaviour, a key component of the school's approach to prevention is teaching positive behaviours. Our school's Matrix of Expectations aligns expected behaviours to our school values. (Appendix 3).

Graduated staged measures are implemented in response to incidents of inappropriate behaviour or choices. The use of restorative practices and logical consequences are used in the first instance to ensure students are heard, understood and issues are dealt with consistently and fairly.

Behaviours in the classroom and the playground have been categorized and defined as minor or major behaviours and a corresponding Compass Chronicle is used by staff to record, alert the leadership team and follow up incidents and issues. These processes and procedures are clear to all staff and students.

(Appendix 4)

Suspension and expulsion are measures of last resort and may only be used in particular situations consistent with Department policy, available at:

APPENDIX 8 (BETLS OBSERVATION TOOL)

BETLS observation tool

BETLS is an acronym for behaviour, emotions, thoughts, learning and social relationships.

This tool is a template for gathering and documenting information and observations about a child or young person, and your particular concerns.

Observations should:

- focus only on what you actually see and hear, rather than what you think about a child or young person's behaviours, emotions and thoughts
- take note of when, where and how often a child or young person is showing a particular behaviour or emotion
- notice what makes the child or young person's experience worse and what makes it better
- record how long the behaviour or emotion occurs (for example, if you're concerned about a child or young person's outbursts, take note of how long they last)
- notice what happens before and after the behaviour that is a concern
- be recorded by different people and in different situations during the day.

This template also provides a space to reflect on a child or young person's experiences.

It allows you to note their thoughts about a situation, and any other additional information that could be playing a role in their behaviour or mood. The space for these notes is limited in the template so your information appears in full when you print, save or share the document.

Strategies

Other notes/observations

What might you do next?

Talk with the child or young person's family? Talk with a colleague? Can individual and family strengths be used to help me think of strategies? What more information do I need about this child or young person – where could I get it?

APPENDIX 9

Principles for health and wellbeing

- Principle 1: Maximise access and inclusion. Quality education and support for all, with extra effort directed to ensuring education and support is accessible and inclusive to the most vulnerable and disadvantaged.
- Principle 2: Focus on outcomes. A focus on health, learning, development and wellbeing outcomes is upheld when designing, delivering, evaluating and improving education and support services.
- Principle 3: Evidence-informed and reflective practice. Policy and practice is informed by current and relevant evidence, known to be effective in improving outcomes. Research and evaluation is undertaken to grow the evidence base and enable effective and reflective practice.
- Principle 4: Holistic approach. Educators and support staff work collaboratively and professionals use multidisciplinary approaches and focus on the range of goals, aspirations and needs of children, young people and families.
- Principle 5: Person-centred and family sensitive practice. Successful schools see people in the context of their families and environment, and seek to support and empower people to lead and sustain healthy lives.
- Principle 6: Partnerships with families and communities. Ensuring children and young people have good health and wellbeing is the collective responsibility of families, schools, the community and government; requiring shared commitment and action.
- Principle 7: Cultural competence. To effectively meet the needs of all children, young people, requires an ability to understand and effectively communicate with people across cultures and recognise one's own world view.
- Principle 8: Commitment to excellence. Education providers and services have high expectations for those they work with, and continually assess their own work practices to find opportunities for improvement.-

APPENDIX 10 (LEGAL OBLIGATIONS AND RESEARCH)

Research shows that a vibrant and positive school culture with a shared enthusiasm for learning is key to successful student outcomes. Intentional design and creative and thoughtful planning are essential to achieving this.

Developing a policy can support schools to address their legal obligations under relevant legislation including:

- The Equal Opportunity Act 2010 (Vic) which prohibits discrimination on the basis of protected attributes (characteristics) including race, religion, disability, sex, age, gender identity and sexual orientation.
- The Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (Vic), which requires public authorities, including government schools and their employees, to act compatibly with human rights and to consider human rights when making decisions and delivering services. Charter decisions in schools include decisions around enrolment, attendance, responding to behaviour concerns (including preventing the escalation of behaviours), the making of adjustments for students with disabilities, preventing and responding to bullying, use of restrictive practices including restraint, and decisions to suspend or expel a student. Rights protected by the Charter include the protection of families and children (including promoting the best interests of the child), the right to equality, and cultural and religious rights.
- The Disability Standards for Education 2005, which clarify and make more explicit the obligations on schools and the rights of students under the Disability Discrimination Act 1992 (Cth). The standards cover enrolment, participation, curriculum development, student support services, and harassment and victimisation.
- The Education and Training Reform Act 2006 (Vic), which states that all Victorians, irrespective of the education and training institution they attend, where they live or their social or economic status, should have access to a high quality education that:
 - realises their learning potential and maximises their education and training achievement
 - promotes enthusiasm for lifelong learning
 - allows parents to take an active part in their child's education and training.
