

LOGIC 1-800

In Logic's song he addresses the fact of teenagers' ups and downs throughout life and how they may need someone in their life to be their rock. They then find someone of the same gender that they connect with. This teenager/young adult goes on to have a somewhat homosexual/gay relationship with his friend, He focuses on his lips as he talks, Showing interest in him and what he is talking about, He then goes home to find out his father, has found what seems to be a gay pornography magazine that was once hidden,

His dad questions him on this and as his dad lectures him, He grabs the magazine and walks away with it. We can then see him with his bag on his back and running as far as he can away from home, His father looks almost disappointed the next day, The boys go under a bridge after school to chat, Later that night he has tea with his parents and they all laugh around the dinner table.

They both fall asleep shirtless in the bed together, The dad goes to wake up his son, realising what is going on, The dad leads him out of the house, He returns to school sad and depressed, The pe coach sees his head down and as he returns to the lockers a dildo is glued to his locker door, He then falls asleep in class, and his teacher feeds him some food as he hasn't eaten, The teacher talks to the dad about his son and informs him of what's going on.

The son while home grabs his magnum from the top dresser he points it at the mirror to symbolize him hating himself and or his self image, He paces up and down his room with the gun in his hand crying as he holds it to his head, We then see him get in a car and run away, until it transitions into him as an adult, He is seen with his now husband, on their wedding day. His parents are happy as can be, The video ends with his father being proud of his son and the camera pans up to the night sky.

LOGIC'S IMPACT ON THE COMMUNITY
