Winners will be selected by a panel considering the assessment criteria above and the "person/s most likely to excel at Hotel Management".

Conditions of Entry

These scholarships or bursaries can be applied to the ICHM tuition fees, uniforms or, on-campus accommodation fees (subject to availability).

Students who meet the scholarship eligibility criteria and ICHM entry requirements can apply for a scholarship. Students who have already applied and been accepted by ICHM for these intakes may also apply by completing the Scholarship Application form.

ICHM has two intakes in 2019. ICHM reserves the right to request winners to commence in the second 2019 intake, unless the applicant has been accepted into the first 2019 intake by scholarship closing date.

It is a condition of these scholarships that recipients commence in either the first or second intakes of 2019. Should a recipient wish to defer to a later entry than 2019, they will forfeit the scholarship or bursary amount.

Once a scholarship recipient has commenced their studies at ICHM, unless they have applied to ICHM in writing and been granted a scholarship deferment, any deferral or withdrawal will result in a forfeiture of the remaining scholarship or bursary amount. Even if they return to ICHM at a later date, they have forfeited their scholarship.

ICHM reserves the right to reduce the value of scholarships if there are less than ten applicants in Australia.

ICHM has been approved by the Australian Government as a FEE-HELP provider. This allows students to borrow money from the Government to fund their studies at ICHM; it is only available to Australian citizens. For more information please follow the links on the ICHM website.

The Selection Panel may decide to increase the number of scholarship winners by reducing the scholarship amount.

Payment of the scholarship amount on behalf of the student for Years 2 and 3 of the course will be dependent upon satisfactory academic results and industry placement performance as determined by the ICHM Academic Board.

The awarding of the Scholarship payment each year depends on the student paying the balance of the fees as outlined in the prospectus and by the due date in their invoice. Students failing to pay the balance of fees by the invoice due date will forfeit their right to their scholarship or bursary amount.

The Scholarships are open to new Year 1 students only. Students currently studying at ICHM are ineligible.

Scholarship students failing to comply with the ICHM rules and regulations in relation to personal and ethical behaviour will forfeit their entitlement to the scholarship.

STUDY A DEGREE WITH TAFE SA

Benefit from the supportive, hands-on learning environment that TAFE SA offers while gaining a nationally accredited degree.

TAFE SA DEGREES

A TAFE SA degree is equivalent to a degree offered at an Australian university and is accredited by the national higher education regulator. Vocationally focussed, a TAFE SA degree provides students with practical skills and the conceptual background needed to operate in complex situations. Students are taught by qualified, industry-experienced staff, with subject specialisation in state-of-the-art facilities; this ensures students receive current and relevant skills, providing them with job confidence. To apply visit

tafesa.edu.au

PARTNERSHIP DEGREES

A TAFE SA/Flinders University Dual Award Partnership Degree enables students to attain both a TAFE SA and a university qualification within the one degree. Students benefit from the strengths of TAFE SA and university learning, combining applied and theoretical knowledge with practical skills. Partnership degrees are delivered across TAFE SA and the university, meaning that students benefit from the facilities offered by both institutions. Apply through either TAFE SA or the university for partnership degrees.

COLLABORATIVELY DELIVERED DEGREES

TAFE SA collaborates with universities to deliver degrees that combine the applied, facilitated TAFE SA learning experience with the analytical, theoretical approach associated with universities.

TAFE SA learning areas such as Film, TV and Game Art offer five media production majors towards the Bachelor of Media, University of Adelaide. Food Technology offers selected subjects towards the Bachelor of Food and Nutrition Science, University of Adelaide.

Apply through the university for collaboratively delivered degrees.

- > prefers the hands-on and supportive learning environment of TAFE SA, before taking the leap to university.
- > seeks an alternative entry to university.

DUAL OFFER COURSES

TAFE SA offers more than 80 dual offer courses in partnership with the South Australian public universities. With dual offer courses, you are accepted into both a TAFE SA qualification and a connected university program. This means that once you complete your TAFE SA course successfully, you have guaranteed entry – with credit – into university.

Studying a dual offer course is a great way to set yourself apart from other graduates. You will benefit from TAFE SA's vocational experience and insights, as well as graduating with two qualifications instead of one.

CREDIT TRANSFER

Study you've completed previously can be recognised when you begin further study at TAFE SA or uni. This means you don't have to repeat coursework, saving you time and money.

Prior qualifications will be recognised for some time after graduation so a gap is generally no problem when applying for a credit transfer. TAFE SA works closely with universities to create clear credit pathways. This helps you to plan your future studies easily.

UNIVERSITY ENTRY

Once you have successfully completed a TAFE SA qualification at Certificate IV level or higher, you can use this to apply for entry into most university programs. Sometimes universities guarantee admission based on your TAFE SA qualification.

FROM UNIVERSITY TO TAFE SA

Many university students also undertake study at TAFE SA to increase their employability by gaining industry-specific practical skills. The knowledge and skills gained through university study may be recognised at TAFE SA, allowing you to fast-track your vocational qualification.

FOUND YOUR COURSE? HERE'S WHAT'S NEXT

Found your perfect course in here? Now it's time to find it online in the Courses section of the TAFE SA website. Click the green Apply Now button and your application will progress via the South Australian Tertiary Admissions Centre (SATAC). Applying is free so if more than one course has caught your eye, apply for those as well. You'll receive confirmation from SATAC and can then arrange your selected courses in order of preference via the SATAC website.

Information on intake, entry requirements, costs and assistance options is available online for each course, but here's a brief intro.

INTAKES

Courses can either have two intakes a year – Semester 1 for a February start and Semester 2 for a July start – or continuous intakes where offers are made throughout the year allowing you to start any term.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

You may need to meet certain selection criteria or Course Admission Requirements (CARs) to be accepted into Certificate IV, Diploma, Advanced Diploma and Degree courses. Check each course online for the most up-to-date info. There are no entry requirements for most Certificate I, II and III courses.

For some courses you may need to submit a portfolio or written assessment, or attend an audition as part of the selection process.

Where there are more applicants than places available, applications are ranked according to previous educational results. The number of places available varies across different TAFE SA campuses.

RECOGNITION OF PRIOR LEARNING (RPL)

Your existing skills and previous learning can earn you credit. RPL means you won't have to re-learn the course units that cover skills you already have. We take into account life experiences, work, formal and informal training, and previous education. It means you may be able to graduate with a TAFE SA qualification sooner than you think.

STUDY COSTS AND ASSISTANCE

The cost of a course depends on the number of hours of training, the type of study involved and specialist materials required.

VET Student Loans are available for selected qualifications, while WorkReady, a South Australian Government initiative, subsidises certain qualifications that can potentially meet the state's workforce needs. Both have eligibility requirements, including demonstration of satisfactory reading, writing and numeracy skills.

FEE-HELP is a Government loan scheme that assists eligible higher education students enrolled in eligible higher education courses to pay their tuition fees. Eligible students can choose to use a FEE-HELP loan to cover all or part of their tuition fees. For more information visit:

tafesa.edu.au/apply-enrol/fee-help

You may also be eligible for a fee concession, payment by instalments or a fee reduction or exemption. Talk to the TAFE SA Information Services Team on 1800 882 661 (freecall) about your options.

CREATIVE FORCES

From billion-dollar film franchises, to innovative urban renewal, the latest addictive app or cutting edge media start-up, now is a great time to be creative.

Work by UniSA student and contemporary artist, Emma Brockliss.

Economically, the creative industries engage over 6% of the Australian workforce and contribute a staggering $90 billion to the Australian economy with an average yearly growth of 2.8%. They employ more workers than the mining, tourism and agricultural sectors; and cultivate small businesses, creative start-ups and self-employed creative artists. Its importance is also most keenly felt in areas that have traditionally depended on manufacturing, like Detroit, Newcastle and Adelaide.

'Creative industries' is a phrase that has gained a lot of currency over the last few years without being well understood. At its heart, the creative industries refer to a broad range of creative and cultural enterprises including visual and performing arts, game design, digital, social and multimedia, journalism, robotics and automation, film and television, animation and VFX, web design, the humanities, and the GLAM sector (galleries, libraries, archives and museums).

Connecting all of these enterprises is their underlying recognition of creativity as an important cultural and economic resource; creativity in both expression and problem-solving that produces new solutions and new ways of thinking.

UniSA is supporting creativity in all its forms with the formation of our new School of Creative Industries, offering degree programs in Media Arts (Film and Television, Visual Effects and Digital Content Creation), Communication and Media, Journalism and the Arts.

Career planning and career outcomes are a key focus of what we do. From day one, week one our students have access to the people and projects that will provide them with the very best outlet for their creativity – and the tools and opportunities to turn that creativity into a career.

South Australia has a long history of leading social justice and social change in this country, actively promoting ideas of social outreach and inclusiveness through creativity. We embrace ideas of multi-diversity and cultural awareness for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. This influence is also found in our courses and programs, as we keep pace with rapid social and cultural change.

We also partner with power players within the creative industries to co-develop and co-deliver contemporary content that makes our graduates industry-ready. Whether that's working side-by-side with professionals on real-world projects and problems, placing them in industry or providing them with the resources to incubate their own start-ups.

We collaborate with companies operating in South Australia, but have a global reach, including visual effects powerhouse Rising Sun Pictures, advertising maestros Kojo, content creators Mighty Kingdom, dynamic production house Matchbox Pictures, Festivals Adelaide, and the South Australian Film Commission.

From digital animation to poetry, sociological approaches in automation to podcasting, pop music to linguistics, creativity comes in many forms. We are in an age of disruption and the opportunities in creative industries are endless.

CAREERS

HIGH VISIBILITY

We often hear people talk about that 'ah-ha' moment. The feeling of a sudden realisation or inspiration.

These moments don't necessarily come from perfect alignment and can't be scripted like a scene from a Hollywood film.

For UniSA graduate and entrepreneur Lisa Penney, her defining moment was after a drunk guy yelled out "Hey reflecto" to her late one night as she was riding her bike past the Grace Emily Hotel in the city, sporting an oversized workman's vest.

Her business of selling ethical high visibility funky fashion vests for cyclists was born. Hey Reflect'o is now a thriving enterprise, splashing colour onto the streets of Adelaide and afar.

"Being creative is the most important thing to me and it's what makes me happy," says Lisa.

"I wanted to have a job doing something I loved, that I had skills in. I thought graphic design would be my best chance," she says.

Lisa studied her undergraduate degree in visual communications and always had a flair for style. With her bold aesthetic and home-made fashion combinations on campus, her teachers knew she would be destined to work in fashion. In fact, after graduation she made costumes, kids apparel, painted tote bags and even worked on her own fashion labels, which she describes as "pretty out there!"

After four years of being the creative force behind this eco-friendly and word-of-mouth success story, Lisa admits there have been ups and downs, and says having your own business is not for the faint hearted.

"The battle with having a creative business is having the time to be creative. I also have to be a business woman," she says.

"Many business people told me that I was ridiculous, because I am paying top dollar to manufacture ethically, but look, I'm Still Standing – thanks Elton John!"

From humble beginnings cutting out paper patterns on her kitchen floor to now overseeing all major business functions including sales, marketing, local manufacturing, overseas manufacturing, and deliveries – Lisa is one busy woman on her retro pink glitter bicycle.

When asked what advice she would give to students about finding their passion, Lisa said "Follow your heart and try a lot of things until something clicks."

SLEEP TIGHT, DON'T LET THE DEVICES BITE

We all know that a good night's sleep is important for our general wellbeing. But the digital era is changing our sleeping habits and Australian children are among the most affected.

UniSA's new Behaviour Brain Body Research Centre (BBB) is investigating the sleeping patterns of young people, with a particular focus on the impact of digital disruption.

BBB is currently working with Resilient Youth Australia Limited (RYA) on ground-breaking research and training, which aims to promote better sleeping habits and driving resilience in young people.

So far, the research has captured a data set of more than 230,000 children aged between 8–18 years from more than 800 schools across Australia.

It has revealed that 25% of Year 3 students text message at night during the hours of 10:00pm–6:00am, which increases to 83% by Year 12.

Smartphones in the bedroom reduce sleep time, disrupt the body's natural circadian rhythm and facilitate communication during the circadian low, drastically impairing the ability to communicate effectively. And, these factors can ultimately have a negative impact on mental health.

The RYA data also shows that night time texting frequency correlates directly with receiving hurtful texts, responding in anger, losing sleep over worry, and experiencing depressive symptoms.

Sleep loss has serious consequences for teenagers. This is because they need more sleep (8–10 hours vs 7–8 for most adults) and also have a delayed sleep-wake pattern. So this, coupled with device obsession and FOMO (fear of missing out) creates the perfect storm.

Technology makes us more alert and the more alert we are, the more active we are – so surrendering to the circadian sleep cycle becomes problematic. We also know that a weekend of 'recovery sleep' is insufficient to restore optimal performance in teens.

However, the research does show that night time texting may foster social connection, which is critical for psychological resilience.

The negative and positive impacts of smartphones in the bedroom (SpiB) have not been studied together, and BBB is leading a new research project to examine this juxtaposition.

It is not enough to simply be sleep researchers – sleep is only one part of the puzzle. We need sleep and chronobiology, clinical psychology, education and physiology to come together in a multi-disciplinary approach to give us a better understanding of how to sleep smart.

NUTTY PROFESSORS?

Nutrient-rich nuts such as almonds, cashews, pistachios and walnuts are already recognised for their health benefits, but there is mounting evidence that they can also help perception, thinking and learning according to UniSA researchers.

The University has previously completed studies that show tree nuts can improve vascular health and cognitive function in adults, but there is limited research looking at the health benefits in children.

So the question remains, "Can nuts improve a child's cognitive abilities?"

Lead researcher Associate Professor Alison Coates from UniSA's School of Health Sciences is looking to recruit healthy boys and girls aged 8–13 years who are not allergic to nuts and have no sleep or behavioural disorders.

The new study will be asking children to consume 30 grams of almonds five days a week for eight weeks – that's about 23 almonds a day.

The researchers will use brain game tests to compare the children's cognitive ability with a control group of other children on a nut-free diet for eight weeks.

"Less than 10% of Australian children consume nuts regularly", says Assoc Prof Coates, despite the proven health benefits.

"Multiple US surveys involving 10,000 adults have already demonstrated a link between regular nut consumption and improved cognitive function, regardless of age, gender, race, education, BMI, smoking, alcohol consumption and physical activity.

"Other European studies looking at the benefits of a Mediterranean diet – including mixed nuts – showed better cognitive ability and a lower risk of depression compared with participants on a low-fat diet", she says.

Nuts are a healthy plant food because they are high in essential nutrients, such as B group vitamins, zinc, iron, magnesium and calcium to name a few. And all of these essential nutrients are important for overall brain health. So the message is to enjoy a healthy handful every day!

PHARMACY STUDY TOUR

In a UniSA first, pharmacy students travelled to the Philippines on an international study tour to learn more about the country's $4.1 billion pharmaceutical industry. Students spent two weeks at the University of Santo Tomas in Manila, studying the differences and similarities between the two countries; and attending workshops and lectures on topics such as community pharmacy and manufacturing.

UniSA offers South Australia's only undergraduate degree in pharmacy and the only double degree with pharmaceutical science.

DEFENDING THE FUTURE

The defence industry in Australia is big business. In a historic move, The Australian Government is investing $200 billion to modernise the nation's defence capability.

Investing in a growing workforce is also a key focus, with Australian workers needed to design, install, build, integrate and maintain ships, submarines, aircraft and land vehicles.

Beyond the traditional roles, there is also a need to significantly enhance our capabilities in intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance, space, electronic warfare and cybersecurity, along with service areas such as health care, psychology, communications, logistics and project management.

Australia's shipbuilding enterprise will need a highly skilled workforce to support its operations. Naval shipbuilding programs secured for South Australia alone are expected to create around 5,200 jobs by the mid-to-late 2020s. This includes the Offshore Patrol Vessel, Future Frigate and Future Submarine Programs, and more.

UniSA mechanical engineering graduate, Bradley Toole, is one of the young professionals already tackling the growing need.

During his studies, Bradley completed an internship with Navantia Australia – a Spanish owned company specialising in the design and construction of high-tech naval vessels with a footprint across the country.

He is now working as an Auxiliary and Propulsion Engineer for Navantia at Osborne in Adelaide's north. This has given him the opportunity to travel to Spain and work with international counterparts.

"It was interesting to work with such a diverse team to achieve the best engineering solutions and to learn from the expertise of a top European shipbuilder, with over 300 years of experience."

"My Spanish colleagues had such a wealth of knowledge, which was passed on to myself and others here in Australia so that we can develop our own capabilities", he says.

Bradley's biggest career highlight to date has been his involvement in the launch of the three highly capable HOBART Class Destroyers being designed by Navantia and built by the Air Warfare Destroyer Alliance. Stories like this are just the start for young people looking to enter the industry and become the new workforce of the 21st century.

*Bradley Toole – UniSA mechanical

UniSA is also growing its defence capability, through strategic undergraduate and postgraduate qualifications in areas such as military systems integration, engineering, industrial design, cybersecurity, artificial intelligence and complex project management; along with enhanced research capabilities and partnering with industry.

Most recently, the University received a $450 million commercial grant from tech giants Siemens, to prepare students for what has been dubbed the 'fourth industrial revolution' or Industry 4.0 – the current trend of improved automation, machine-to-machine communication, artificial intelligence and continued digitisation of manufacturing. Through this partnership, UniSA students now have access to the latest software for space gear, supercars and warships.

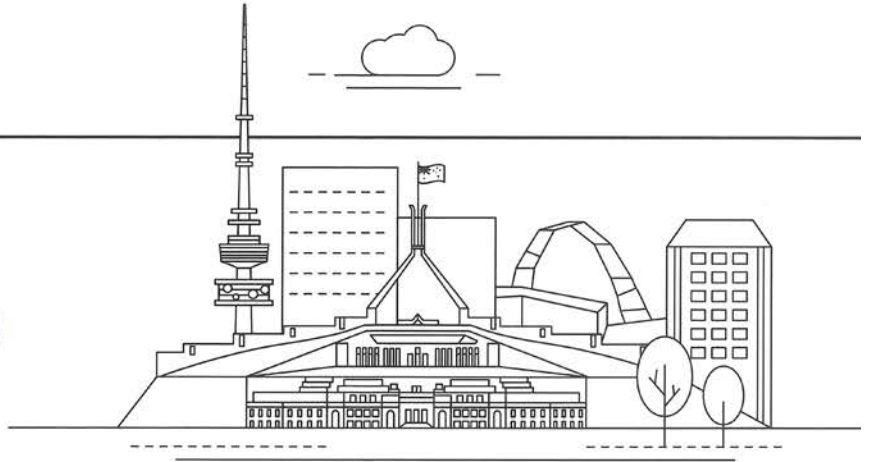

The new Saab Australia–UniSA Defence Technologies Institute will also see defence professionals upskill and build on their existing knowledge at our Mawson Lakes Campus. The partnership will also provide opportunities for student placements, collaborative research projects and co-developed curriculum.

A PASSPORT TO CAPITAL HILL

There was a time when a law degree was considered a passport to a career in that very arena – the law.

But with thousands of students graduating from Australia's 41 law schools every year, and technology bringing more efficiencies to the legal profession – such as online legal services – the traditional notion of what lawyers do is rapidly evolving.

We are also seeing positive figures around graduate employment. The Australian Government Department of Education and Training's 2017 Graduate Outcomes Survey shows that 74% of undergraduate and 87% of postgraduate law and paralegal students gained full-time employment within 12 months.

One of the reasons for the high employment rate is that a growing number of students are combining law with a range of other degrees, and applying those skills in a diverse range of careers.

UniSA graduate and ABC's Federal Political Reporter, Matthew Doran, studied a double degree in law and journalism.

Matthew provides news coverage across radio, television, online and social media. He works as part of the ABC's Parliament House Bureau team keeping the nation informed on everything happening on Capital Hill, with a special focus on legal and foreign affairs.

He is fascinated by how the law impacts almost every facet of public life, whether it's law and order, consumer rights and protections, business deals or the operation of government.

"I combined law with journalism because my real desire was always to become a journalist and I was just lucky that UniSA opened its Law School when I was in Year 12 offering the only opportunity in Adelaide to study a double degree that combined both fields," Matthew says.

"Studying law gives you an analytical edge that I've found has helped me to quickly process large volumes of information and distil it into a package the general public can easily digest."

"In television news, it's rare to be given more than two minutes to explain what can be complex government policies. In radio news, there's even less time. And when it comes to an online audience, you still have to make an issue interesting to hold on to an audience. In the same way a journalist has to pick the strongest angle for their story, lawyers and barristers have to pick the strongest arguments for their client's case," he says.

Matthew's law degree has certainly helped him in covering one of the biggest issues of this term of parliament – the dual citizenship saga, which has claimed the scalps of more than a dozen parliamentarians and has seen the High Court take an unprecedented role in deciding the makeup of the House of Representatives and Senate.

"I think there can be a blinkered view of where a law degree can take you – solicitor, barrister, judge's associate. A law degree opens up so many more avenues and puts you in a good position to perform well in an increasingly competitive job market," says Matthew.

UniSA offers a range of law double degree combinations and was recently ranked in the World's Top 100 for Law in the 2018 Times Higher Education World Subject Rankings.

Scores are scaled to take into consideration year-to-year differences in test difficulty.

WHAT DOES THE PERCENTILE RANK MEAN?

A percentile rank indicates how you performed in relation to all other candidates who sat uniTEST in the same year, regardless of the course applied for. A percentile rank is given to enable you to gauge your performance relative to all others who took the test in the same year. A higher percentile figure indicates higher performance and vice versa.

WHAT HAPPENS IF I PERFORM POORLY IN THE TEST?

It will be of little consequence if you perform poorly in uniTEST as Flinders University will only consider your highest selection rank when offering you a place. If your ATAR selection rank (inclusive of any adjustment factors) is higher than the combined uniTEST/ATAR selection rank, this will be considered as priority in the first instance.

You cannot be disadvantaged by participating in uniTEST.

WHEN WILL I BE ADVISED IF I HAVE AN OFFER?

The South Australian Tertiary Admissions Centre (SATAC) will, on behalf of Flinders, make you an offer. If you are successful you will be offered a place in the January offer rounds. You will be able to check it online at SATAC as well as receiving an email notifying you of your offer.

IF I GET AN OFFER CAN I DEFER?

If you do decide to defer, commencing domestic students can defer most Flinders courses until the following year. For further information see www.flinders.edu.au/defer

IF I DEFER AND DECIDE TO CHANGE MY PREFERENCE CAN I RE-SIT UNITEST?

You are only allowed to sit uniTEST once and cannot re-sit in subsequent years. Your result however will be valid for your change of preference providing the course is on the list of eligible courses.

HOW LONG WILL MY RESULT BE VALID FOR?

uniTEST results remain valid for a period of 2 years. If you decide to change course mid-year; your uniTEST result may be considered in determining a place in your newly preferred course.

If you have undertaken uniTEST and are unsure if your results are still valid you should contact Student Recruitment:
