Son - Abraham Nathan-Valentine, Year 10

My family was first alerted to JMSS by our son Abraham's own research when he was in year 5. He was attracted to a school that would encourage his love of science and nurture his enquiring mind. We were delighted to find that the school indeed does nurture the enthusiasm felt by that then 10 year-old child.

I am the product of a selective government school (University High) and I feel that I would like to give something back to a system that has been so good to me and which is providing such a wonderful opportunity to my son.

My occupation is in management consulting at KPMG with a particular focus on finance. From this role, I have experience in designing operating models for large organisations. Prior to KPMG I worked in banking for 25 years providing risk-management advice to top-tier corporations.

I'm married to Katie who works as a mediator and has taught me a lot about communicating with people, especially when there is a diversity of ideas.

We have two other children aged 17 and 12. My 17 year-old is on the autism spectrum. Years of parenting and researching the best way of educating and teaching him social skills has given me insight into the support and inclusion of children and families of all needs and abilities.

I am also a keen runner and enjoy subjecting my family to bad puns.

I would welcome the opportunity to contribute my time and energy to JMSS.

Regards
Trevor
