

Why being born over sea or being an immigrant isn't a disadvantage.

I think being born over sea isn't a disadvantage and I'm going to tell you why.

Firstly some people in the world think people from other country's or immigrants would be mentle' very aggressive or even think that they have a very contagious' incurable and fatale disease. But take Deng Adut' he immigrated from South Sudan to Australia he was a former child soldier. (A child soldier is a human basing less that 18 years old' recruited by the army or an armed conflict). When he arrived in Australia (14 years old) he knew no English. At 15 he taught himself English using the wiggles tv show and a bible. A few years latter he completed a TAFE course equivalent to a high school certificate. He decided to go to university' he applied to Macquarie University only to be rejected following with racist remarks. When he applied to western Sydney University he was excepted. He graduated with bachelor of law. He is now a defence lawyer defending western Sydney youth. In 2017 he was named New South Wales Australian of the year.

Secondly only 29.7% of Australians are immigrants based of a 2019 study. I honestly think 15 should be 50%-50% of immigrants and people who are born in Australia.

Thirdly there is another famous persons who immigrated to Australia. He is called Anh Do' he has wrote 51 books the books are mainly children books. He is one of the most famous authors of this century.

In conclusion' I feel that because some people hate immigrants it pushes them to try harder' do more and get very successful.

By Kinga 