

Last week all students in all classes recognised National Reconciliation Week. We at Croydon Special Developmental School are committed to reconciliation with our indigenous Australians and we showed this by engaging in arts, crafts and cooking bush tucker ingredients, throughout the week.

Some staff, including Natalie and Helen, reported that they were thrilled with the sharing of “delicious” biscuits, made by the students.

On Friday, during the Allied Health Friday Fun Group with students in Room 19 and 20, they decided to honour reconciliation week by making a big banner, colouring in the letters and making some paper people.

We hope you enjoyed the lovely gifts brought home by our students last week. Check out some photos below from Rooms 19, 20, 11 and EEP.
