I've lived in the hills for most of my life, attending Monbulk Primary, St Paul's and Monbulk Secondary. I now have four children of my own and we live cliffside in Upwey.

Dreams of being an author began with secret diary entries when I was eight and stretched to VCE English assignments where I submitted ridiculous stories with too many adjectives (sorry, Mrs Bush!).

My first novel—SOMEONE ELSE'S CHILD—is out with HarperCollins!

It is a domestic thriller about a mother who will do anything to save her child from terminal cancer, that includes raising $200,000 for a drug trial in Europe.

Her small community band together, just like we do in the hills, but all is not as it seems ...
