What is Mechatronics and Robotics?

According to the Excel Education website, these specialised roles are defined accordingly:

Mechatronics

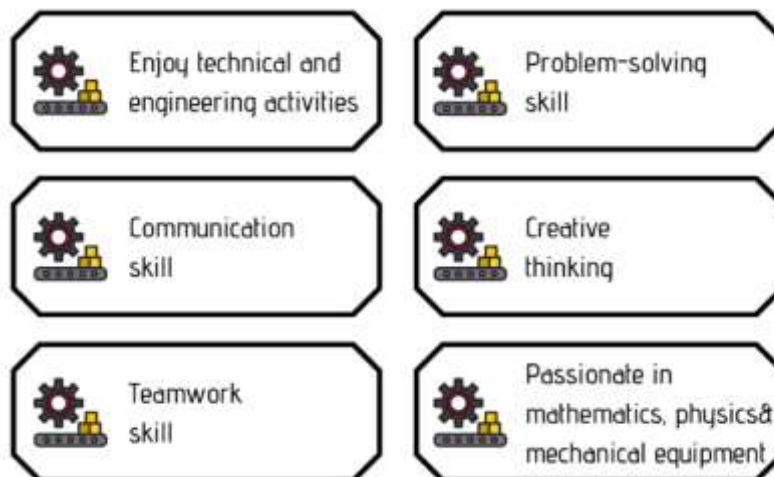

Mechatronics is an essential foundation for the expected growth in automation and manufacturing. It is the best of both worlds where electrical and mechanical realms complement each other to create a good system. To put it simply, you need to have good electronics skills in order to have an even better mechanical design when it comes to robotics and mechatronics, and vice versa. Mechanic engineers and electronic engineers are both specialists in their own major. However, for mechatronic engineers, they need to take both mechanical and electronic into account because they need to have a broader view for the overall design.

Robotics

Robotics is closely related to the design, construction, and as well as computer systems mainly focusing on the control, sensory feedback, and information processing. It involves the concept of Programming, Mathematics, Design, Electronics and much more. Robotic engineers deal with creating robots and robotic systems mainly to make impossible duties to be possible, and difficult duties to be convenient. Particularly in the manufacturing industry, robotics engineers help to make jobs safer, easier, and more efficient for human beings.

Robotics can be considered as part of Mechatronics as it similarly involves these mechanical, electronics and computer engineering fields. Mathematically, robotics is the subset of mechatronics set. In simple words, all robotic systems are mechatronic systems, but not all mechatronic systems are robotic systems.

Below are the key skills required to succeed in the study of robotics and mechatronics.

Dear Organisation/Business,

We are inviting you to get involved in an exciting new project, addressing unemployment amongst youth. Empowered, confident and connected youth lead to a brighter and safer community for all. Manningham Volunteer Resource Service has partnered with Manningham Youth Services and Gateway LLEN in this council funded initiative.

We need volunteer hosts!

Young people, eager to experience how a workplace looks, feels and operates will have the opportunity to gain insight within organisations and businesses in Manningham. For many young people, this will be their first time in a workplace, due to the effect of the COVID-19 pandemic last year. As this is the first of this type of project, time frames for volunteer experiences are flexible and will look different in every setting. There is no long-term commitment expected. Organisations and businesses can choose to host a young person for a couple of hours, two days a week, or for a longer period over the school holidays. Not only will this experience be fulfilling for our young people, organisations and businesses will have determined youth, keen to learn and work.

Organisations within Manningham who have a desire to keep connected within their community will join the MYEPP program to deliver meaningful volunteering experiences to our young people. This community capacity building will lead to greater employment opportunities for the youth of Manningham, while not-for-profit and profit businesses alike, have a chance to showcase their services, products, and team to the wider community. Involved businesses will receive council approval in the form of a dedicated ambassador logo, extended promotional opportunities and priority sites at the youth employment expo.

Get involved and show your support for our local youth and for the future of Manningham.
