➤ JOB SPOTLIGHT

CONSTRUCTION – PART 1

Were you the kid who loved lego and building forts in the yard? If you love building, creating and working with your hands then a career in construction might be a good fit.

Rather than pick just one career in construction, we're going to take a good look at 5 different jobs over the next 5 weeks. Whether you're building a house or an airport, just about every trade is represented on each worksite so it's smart to get an idea of how they all fit together.

Check out the Construction Bullseye from MyFuture here.

Surveyor

From the Board of Surveying and Spatial Information of NSW – “A career in surveying can be very diverse and involves travelling and the use of specialised technology. Surveyors can be involved in making measurements in the outdoors or indoors processing data and creating plans and maps.”

What does that mean? In a nutshell, surveyors measure and map things then provide the information to people like engineers, architects and developers.

Video – Working in Surveying

You could work in the office or in the field, using high-tech equipment and sophisticated software to put together measurements that are needed by other design professionals.

Without their work it would be impossible for engineers and architects to accurately design and construct buildings.

Salary: from around $42k for an Assistant (Cert III level) to $64k for a Draftsperson with 5 years' experience. University qualifications mean you could earn $90k plus as a Licensed/Registered Surveyor.

Qualifications: From TAFE, start with a Cert III and work through to a Diploma to become a fully qualified draftsperson, you need a university degree to become a surveyor.

Where do I start? Check out A Life Without Limits, they have heaps of fantastic info and a list of all the courses at TAFE and uni level in Australia.
