The transition between primary and high school can be tough at the best of times – and if you’re deaf or hard of hearing, you’ll be faced with a whole extra set of challenges. The good news? You’re not alone. At Hear For You we all remember how nerve-wracking it is to start high school, and we’ve designed this program to help make things easier for you.

This workshop will cover tips, advice and strategies on how to best deal with the transition to High School. You will hear from a current High School student, a QLD Hear For You Mentor and an Qld Education AVT.

This workshop will include a parent session where parents can ask questions to assist them with this transition.

Life Goals and Skills Workshop

Our Life Goals and Skills Workshops are sessions that bring together groups of teenagers to realise that deafness is more of a “difference” than a disadvantage. We show the teenagers that they are not alone, we inspire them, and share hints and tips on how to deal with all the obstacles that come with deafness.

We are here to help the teenagers get the best out of being deaf, to realise their dreams and to live their best life. Hear For You Life Goals and Skills Workshops are delivered by young deaf or hard of hearing adults who have experienced the same challenge the teenagers are currently facing.

Topics that are covered during the workshops include

- Friendships, communication and conflict resolution
- School subject & career choices and casual work
- Teamwork, leadership and personal identity
- Technology & social media safety

Indelability Arts will be delivering a weekend workshop

Students will learn the ins-and-outs of theatre performance from industry trained professionals. Indelabilityarts will take them through core theatrical training processes, show development, confidence building, and performance. This workshop will be a great introduction to help build skills for our film making workshop later in the year.
