

“What is the workplace of the future for our students?”

The Nossal Parents and Friends Association (PFA) is pleased to invite you to an informative and thought-provoking online information session with Mr Andrew Simmons CEO of SELLEN.

- Andrew will present you with current and local information about the job markets our students will be entering in the future; the current and emerging employment needs and opportunities; the skills, attributes and qualities employers and tertiary institutions are seeking; alternate pathways and emerging new career options; and how we and our students can best prepare for the future and long-term success
- Career change data, confirming with parents that studies show most young people will have more significant job/career changes than their parents
- Previous jobs growth across the region
- Current skill shortages in the region and the State
- Jobs growth in the region and across the State
- Linking growth in employment opportunities with population growth in the South East
- Benefits of being multi-lingual in the region

SOUTH EAST LOCAL LEARNING & EMPLOYMENT NETWORK

- The South East Local Learning and Employment Network (South East LLEN) is a community managed regional network made up of local organisations in Melbourne's South East, interested in working to give 10 to 19 year olds a better go at successfully moving through the education system to employment.
- Our network membership includes approximately 250 members, including organisations such as schools, TAFE's, local businesses and youth welfare agencies, as well as individuals.

Andrew Simmons

CEO, SELLEN

Andrew Simmons – Chief Executive Officer, South East Local Learning and Employment Network
Andrew has extensive executive experience in a variety of roles within the youth, education and training sectors. Andrew has held school principal positions, CEO and General Manager roles in large public, private and not for profit organisations, he currently sits on numerous Boards and Ministerial Appointed Committees and Panels. With a Bachelor of Teaching, Post Graduate in Mathematics and a Masters of Enterprise, Andrew has qualifications that reflect his experience in the private, government and NFP sectors.

Andrew is passionate about engaging community in education, training and employment, as well as broader engagement of young people and believes that education is the key to opening options and opportunities for all. Andrew believes that education is the responsibility of the entire community, something that, in this day and age, cannot be left to schools alone.
