co-op scholarships guide

A guide to co-op scholarships in Australia for students commencing study in 2023.

VERSION 1

The advice in this guide may be subject to change at any time. In our experience, universities can and do choose to change their entry requirements and processes and you should always check directly with the organisation for their latest information before commencing any application. We have verified most of the information directly with the organisations, and in some cases the information in this guide may differ from that published on the university website, or in their printed material.

on offer in Australia for 2023 entry

give yourself a head start

We love co-op scholarships.

These are the real deal. Loads of financial support, opportunities to build your network, real-world internships, study-friendly accommodation, and overseas study trips. Co-op scholarships have everything you need to thrive at uni, and one of them even has an internship with Haigh's Chocolate (yum!).

Of course, if you want a co-op scholarship, you'll need to earn it.

They'll want to see the good things you've done, and many of them will want to hear from you personally. You could need to sit an interview or provide a personal statement, and some universities want to see what your teachers think of you as well.

If you've excelled in one area (or more), then you should seriously think about applying. Some of the scholarships ask for your academic results, and may have minimum ATAR requirements (University of Sydney want 99.90) but many of them look at other things. This could be your work in the community, sporting or artistic performance, or leadership skills.

competitive but you'll reap the rewards

These esteemed scholarships are highly sought after, so the applications can be highly competitive – but they are definitely worth your time applying.

You might even receive an income while you're still studying at uni, as some internships are salaried. Many of these programs also have a 100% success rate for employment upon graduation. If you don't leave university with a job already lined up, the fact that you received a Co-op Scholarship will look fantastic on your resume, could appeal to potential employers, and may have provided you with relevant work experience and useful industry contacts. In other words, you'll definitely be ahead of the pack.

Your next step is to browse this guide, find one or two to apply for, and get going.

Tip: If you'd like to go to uni after high school and would love to score one of these amazing opportunities, then don't leave it until Year 11 and 12. Do your research earlier, find out what you'll need to be eligible and make a head start on ensuring that you and your application will stand out above the rest.

they're different from other scholarships

Scholarships in any form are great.

They're generally sums of money donated to applicants who meet the eligibility requirements specific to that scholarship. There are thousands available in Australia.

They could really make a difference to your tertiary education experience by removing financial pressure and other barriers that could otherwise prevent you from achieving your goals. Or they could help you start your working life with less debt than you'd otherwise have.

Co-op Scholarships go the extra mile.

Not only do they provide some financial benefit (or in some cases a lot), they could also provide you with amazing extras such as:

- Mentoring
- Leadership and development programs
- Work experience
- Paid internships
- Tuition fees paid
- Guaranteed accommodation
- Access to workshops and special events
- Networking

who can apply for a co-op scholarship?

Each scholarship is unique to the institution or provider, so you'll have to check that you'll meet the eligibility requirements before you spend time applying.

Co-op scholarships are generally open to high achievers. If you think that doesn't sound like you, it's still worth checking – merit isn't just given for amazing academic results, although it is often a pre-requisite.

Some scholarships will accept applications from people who've been recommended by their school for their outstanding contributions. Others want to reward individuals who've worked hard and made a difference with community involvement, or perhaps have shown great potential with their leadership abilities.

check your obligations

If you're granted one of these highly prized Co-op Scholarships you'll be expected to take your studies seriously.

You'll have to make sure you stay on track and achieve your predicted ATAR results (or better).

Once you've enrolled at university and started your course, you might have to maintain the required GPA in order to keep the scholarship.

There could also be other requirements you'll have to comply with, for example:

- Help out at orientation week
- Commit to helping out on campus
- Active involvement within your chosen department
- Attending all additional programs and events that you're entitled to (even if your course is full-time and you have other commitments)

It might be worth double checking the terms and conditions before accepting any offers to make sure you'll be able to meet any obligations as well as keeping on top of your studies.
