THE WAR THAT SAVED MY LIFE by Kimberly Brubaker Bradley

Ten-year-old Ada lives in her one room flat with her mother and younger brother Jamie. She has never left her flat, due to her twisted foot and her mother's humiliation. But, when WW2 begins, all children are evacuated from London. Her Mother does not want Ada to go because of her foot, but when it comes time for Jamie to leave, Ada sneaks out and joins him. Ada and Jamie then make the journey across the country, where no one seems to want them. Begrudgingly, Susan agreed to take them in. In this new environment, Ada and Jamie are cautious at first but soon discover all the opportunities that surround them. Ada learns to read, write, ride a horse, and even catches a German spy. But, just as Ada and Jamie are feeling right at home, a bomb is dropped on the airport across from their home, and not that long after, their Mother turns up, wanting her kids back! Ada, Susan and Jamie will really have to stick together. When the goings get tough, the tough get going! I would recommend this book because if you like adventure, mystery and a few twists along the way. !!

SCYTHE by Neal Shusterman

Set in a post-apocalyptic world where you can only die by being randomly selected by killers, called scythes, to be gleaned (killed). Rowan and Citra are apprentices under the same scythe, and when they find out that the person who doesn't become a scythe will get gleaned by the other, it becomes nasty... I would recommend this book because the story is very good and its plot is very well conveyed.

THE DETECTIVE'S GUIDE TO OCEAN TRAVEL by Nicki Greenberg

Arriving in New York with her two new best friends, Sol, a upcoming pastry chef and Norah, a Broadway star, Pepper is excited to spend her holiday with them. But when Anthony Sharkey dines at the restaurant Sol works at, it all goes downhill. I would recommend this book to people who enjoy reading fun, interesting mysteries, but I would recommend reading the first book The Detective's Guide to Ocean Travel to get a backstory on all the characters.
