Ambulance
Victoria

HEALTH & COMMUNITY SERVICES

Troy & Vanessa Harvey – DSC Graduates – covering areas of Paramedicine, Nursing & the Police.

Ambulance Victoria responds to more than 840,000 emergency and non-emergency cases, and transports more than 660,000 patients by road or air each year. We gauge the performance and effective delivery of our services through measures including response times, which we release on a quarterly basis. We also measure the impact our clinical interventions have on the immediate and longer-term medical condition of our patients. This allows us to understand the significance of our interventions and, where beneficial, change our clinical practice to improve future patients' medical outcomes.

EMPLOYMENT, APPRENTICESHIPS & TRAINEESHIPS

What are the benefits of doing an apprenticeship or traineeship?

Completing an apprenticeship or traineeship has many benefits as a pathway into a career. These include:

- Earning a wage while you learn.
- Developing practical skills specific to the occupation or industry you are interested in.
- Experiencing training that is hands-on and delivered in the workplace, in a classroom, or a combination of both approaches.
- Gaining a nationally recognised qualification which can provide the basis for further education and training over the course of your working life.
- Potentially accessing government financial support and other benefits to assist with the costs incurred whilst you are undertaking your training.
- Updating skills in an area you already work in.
- Increasing your value as a qualified employee.
- Your apprenticeship or traineeship can also be used as a pathway to a higher level qualification, including other vocational education and training qualifications, and university qualifications.

"My apprenticeship has given me the best opportunity to start a long career in the electrical and instrument trade and has made me more confident so I can be successful in such a competitive industry. I get to work with motivated and driven employees who provide invaluable knowledge and skills. An apprenticeship is one of the best ways to get on-the-job training and obtain qualifications that are highly regarded by employers."

Nathan G.
Electrician

"I've enjoyed my first industry experience and my traineeship has built my confidence and helped me gain skills that will set me up for future employment. I've recommended a traineeship to a number of my friends who are trying to decide on the next step in their career."
