Before | Started drawing my owl, I felt nervous, scared and excited. Would I be able to do it properly? Will I mess up? I kept thinking and asking these questions to myself. When I started sketching my owl just couldn't get it right. If I did it portrate, the owl's feet would go off the page.

If I try to do it landscape,

The tail will go out of the page. It was annoying. When I somehow expressed how frustrated I was my parent's gave me suggestions. And somehow, I did it! After I checked and checked my drawing, I felt sure that it was time for me to paint it. I started to think, what colour should I do for the tail? Or the body? I was really not sure. But when num came to check on me, she told me I could do it. So, l decided I would do a already to know what it will look like in the end.

	The next year, it was time for the anouncers to anounce who the winner was. But sadly it wasn't me, but my painting got to be up on a wall and it also could be on the side of the road!
	That was good enough for me.
	was glad that I had entered the competition. I hope I can next time!!
