Careers in Mining

The following information has been taken from Careers with STEM, <https://bit.ly/2W2Yz5k>

“Australia’s minerals industry is a diverse and vibrant sector, with many different opportunities for school leavers, apprentices and trainees, tradespeople and university graduates.

Some of the exciting careers on offer in mining include engineering, trades and mechanics, environmental science, geology and data analytics to name just a few.

Advances in technology are making the industry safer, more competitive and more sustainable, and the Australian minerals industry is rapidly adopting new technology such as robotics, drones, data science and virtual and augmented reality. This will require a different skills mix for our future workforce.

Traditional jobs are also increasingly being boosted with new technology – for example, a shot-firer working on a drilling team will have the opportunity in Australia’s future minerals workforce to use drone technology to monitor automated rigs.

The Minerals Council of Australia has put together Australia’s first More to Mining Careers Guide to show the range of highly skilled, highly paid job opportunities on offer in our world-leading minerals industry.

Workers, students, industry experts and researchers from across Australia were interviewed for the More to Mining Careers Guide so they could share their mining career stories and bust some myths and stereotypes about the minerals industry.

There are so many different people and careers in mining, but they all have two things in common: they love their jobs and are proud of their industry. Open your mind to an exciting future and find out why there is so much more to mining than you might think! You can download the Guide from <https://bit.ly/2JaMyH9>

Careers at the Commodore mine in QLDs

Darling Downs: Careers with STEM, Downer, and the Minerals Council of Australia have produced videos featuring people working at the Commodore mine and using technology such as drones, virtual reality, 3D models and gaming technology. Watch the videos at this link - <https://bit.ly/2MBSDOP>

Changes to entry to Physiotherapy: From 2020, you will have two opportunities to be able to study physiotherapy at Monash – an undergraduate and a graduate pathway.

Option 1 - undergraduate: Bachelor of Physiotherapy (Honours). The indicative ATAR for this course is 97.35.

Option 2 – graduate entry: if you are concerned you won't achieve the ATAR for the Bachelor degree, you can apply to study an eligible degree at Monash such as Bachelor of Biomedical Science, or Health Sciences and then apply for the new 3-year Doctor of Physiotherapy at Monash once you graduate. For information on entry criteria, go to <https://bit.ly/2W4lqgm>

To cover both options, add back up-Bachelor degrees to your VTAC preference list.

Engineering at Monash: interested in keeping up-to-date with what goes on in the Faculty of Engineering? Sign up to their newsletter! You can read about what students are up to, and see the impact of Monash's research and partnerships. It's also a great tool to help you better understand what engineers do, <https://bit.ly/32ludZO>

Diploma of Higher Education: provides a pathway into the following Bachelor degrees – Science and Education, <https://bit.ly/2MAZOlj>

Add the Diploma/s to your VTAC preferences as back-up options.

Explore psychology at Monash: Do you wonder how the human mind works? Studying psychology is a chance to analyse how we think and behave. Monash offers a range of pathways for students with a passion for psychology – from a specialist degree, to a major or minor within their Arts or Science degrees (or double degrees). Assess your options at this link, <https://bit.ly/2pGRKvl>

Updates from RMIT University

Learn to fly at RMIT: Becoming a professional pilot in the competitive field of aviation can lead to a satisfying and well-paid career.

The International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) found that in the most likely scenario 980,733 pilots will be required globally in 2030, with 229,676 of these in the Asia Pacific region.

RMIT holds an Air Operator's Certificate, which means their students are highly employable with more than the minimum number of hours spent in the air when they graduate.

RMIT has trained more than 3,000 pilots from around the world and our graduates have gone onto work in the aviation industry, both in Australia and overseas.

RMIT now offers flight training at both Point Cook and Bendigo. For information and to book in for an information session at the Bendigo campus, go to <https://bit.ly/32FvEb6>

Pathways tool: As we know, the traditional path into university isn't the only one. Pathways give the opportunity to access our large range of vocational education courses that lead onto Undergraduate study. View our exciting new pathways tool to find out more, <https://bit.ly/2p2Jmq4>

Theatre at The University of Melbourne

The Faculty of Fine Arts and Music has developed a new video for students considering applying to study Theatre. It shows students in action and clearly explains the difference between Acting and Theatre. The video also includes a few great student stories and comments from Matt Delbridge, Head of Theatre at the VCA, <https://bit.ly/2N6uZsl>
