

Black Lives Matter

Black Lives Matter is a movement delicate to people's civil disobedience in protest against police brutality against the African- American community.

Recently there has been a Black Lives Matter movement that has sparked the demise of an African- American who was innocently killed by the police officers. This incident enraged many individuals which led to all the protests, riots and petitions occurring right now.

Numerous individuals agree with these protests, riots and petition as this could be used in revenge of the 400+ years of slavery and mistreatment against the African- American people. These people also agree that white privilege is real and these protests on incidents demonstrate the reality of white privilege for those who don't believe in it.

Others also believe that these protests and riots should not be happening and that these behaviours are unacceptable these are not the same people that don't believe white privilege is real. They often over work white privilege and believe everyone is being treated equally.

I believe people should have the right to speak up for their opinions and to protest. These issues have been occurring easily to the point where it has become a controversial issue that has been spread around the world as people join in solidarity to try and affect them. Their lives over the skin of their skin colour and appearance. The government wants to force blacks to pledge poems that do not apply to anyone, and you would think they would care to hear what they have to say about but instead they try to blame them for their action and our own.

Honestly African- American have many reasons to protest the national anthem, the pledge of allegiance and law enforcement due to unwelcome racial discrimination, which is why we have created a movement called BLACK LIVES MATTER.
